V. VADI / B. DE WITTE, Culture and International Economic Law, Routledge, UK, 2015, 258 pp., ISBN: 978-0-415-72326-8

The authors, Valentina Vadi, who is a Reader in international economic law at Lancaster University, in the UK, and Bruno de Witte, who is Professor of European Union law at Maastricht University, managed to provide a comprehensive introduction for people who are interested in international trade law, cultural heritage law and public international law. The book explores the importance of globalization and international economic law for cultural exchange and the way the economic activities of minorities can be protected by international human rights law. This book combines in its four chapters a detailed examination of the culture and economic law, international economic law, international intellectual property law and European law. The main focus here is on the interaction between culture and economic interest in human rights law, which provides a powerful counter narrative to the analogous interplay between culture and economic interest in international economic law. Through examples of case studies and examination of the text, the book helps understand the connection between culture and economic interest, market integration and cultural diversity in EU law.
